The More You Know
Rabbi Joseph Dweck, Senior Rabbi
of the S&P Sephardi Community of the United Kingdom
“...We are all born ignorant, but one must work hard to remain stupid.”
Benjamin Franklin

On the last day of Moshe’s life, he gathered all of the people together and shared his parting words. In his message he informed them of the Torah’s final two commandments, both of which are linked to education. The first requires that the people gather at the Holy Temple every seven years in order to hear the Torah read to the public by the king. Men, women and children are required to attend this gathering. The second requires every man in the nation to write his own Sefer Torah (Torah scroll).

The final mitzvot of the Torah are about scholarship. The first, called Hakkat, is a national gathering for the purpose of learning. Every young children are meant to experience the coming together of the nation for the sake of knowledge. Each decade of a person’s life would involve this gathering. It would set the bearing of the Torah and absorbing the information as a national value.

So that they should hear and that they should learn... And their children who do not know will hear and learn... (31:12-13)

The writing of the Sefer Torah requires that the full text of the Torah is to be with every individual; it is to be written, read and studied.

And now, write for yourselves down this song, teach it to your children... (31:19)

It is scholarship that is the final note of God’s Torah. The highlighted point is that it is not meant to be for a particular class or sect of scholars. It is for everyone. In Torah, education is not for the elite it is the foundation for every man’s soul.

No matter the level of our natural intelligence, we all have the ability to choose to be knowledgeable or ignorant. Torah’s commandments end with charges to create environments in which learning is the culture of the people and where voluntary ignorance is a cardinal transgression. There is much that can be said regarding the failure of teachers to teach, of schools to educate and of mentors to enlighten. But none of it excuses us from owning the responsibility to search for wisdom on our own. We live in an age where information is more readily available to us than at any point in human history — including Jewish education.

Three thousand years ago Moshe imparted each of us to own a copy of the entire Torah and to hear it read by every member of our population. Today, with the stroke of a finger, worlds of information are freely and abundantly available to us. If we wish to be strong in our identities, we must study. If we wish to understand who we are and what the world is about, we must commit to learning.

On Yom Kippur we focus a great deal on what we lack in our behaviors and personalities. We consider that we could be kinder, gentler, more generous and sensitive with others. But the fact that we could all better understand the body of knowledge that has educated and inspired people for millennia is not usually the most evident aspect of self-development. Broadening our understanding of Judaism may seem daunting, as there is a great deal to know. One approach that we can take is to commit to learning — even in small portions — on a consistent basis. Whether it be a weekly class or a daily reading of a section in Torah, learning prompts questioning, questioning prompts discovery and discovery brings enlightenment.

Moshe’s final message was not simply to learn, but to make learning a regular part of one’s life.

Succot

Fulfill the Mitzvah of Tzedaka:
Make Your Holiday Offerings
We traditionally make memorial offerings during Kippur services and offerings of thanksgiving on Sukkot. These offerings are a beautiful way to memorialize or pay tribute to loved ones and help maintain our synagogue. Go to shearithisrael.org/lulab to make offerings for Kippur and Sukkot.

Sukkah Greens Composting
Due Sunday, October 30
After Sukkot, rather than throwing out your lulabim, take advantage of this special eco-friendly opportunity and leave your lulabim with us! The NYC Dept of Sanitation (DSNY) will collect our Sukkot organics for composting. Leave your lulabim in the box near the water fountain outside Levy Auditorium and we’ll do the rest.

Hoshana Rabba Mishmarah-Tikkun and New Members Sukkah Gathering
Saturday, October 22, 9:00 pm
Join us in this annual Shearith Israel tradition as we bid farewell to Sukkah and prepare for Simchat Torah with celebratory food and study in our stunning Elias Room sukkah. Featuring a shiur by Rabbi Soloveichik centering on the reading of the last and first verses of the Torah, this year, we will use this opportunity to welcome new members who have joined the synagogue in the past year. We encourage both new and veteran members alike to join.

Parnas Office Hours
Louis Solomon would be delighted to meet with you. Please schedule a visit at parnas@shearithisrael.org.

Meals in the Sukkah
Shearith Israel members and their guests are welcome to enjoy self-catered meals in a Shearith Israel community sukkah. Registration and a cover charge of $12 per seat (including children) are required for each meal. We supply beverages, tablecloths and disposables and you bring the food (strictly kosher, of course). Space is highly limited. We will accommodate members and immediate family on a first-come-first-serve basis. Non-member guests will be accommodated closer to the date depending on availability. Due to our new building construction, we do not have a courtyard or sidewalk sukkah this year. If we are oversubscribed, we will create a wait list and hope to accommodate as many people as possible. Please email mcaputo@shearithisrael.org to register.

Simhat Torah
