DEBAR TORAE IS THIS THE PROMISED END?
— Z. Edinger —

In this week’s parasha we read the Shirat haYam (Song of the Sea) sung by the Israelites after their miraculous redemption in praise of God for splitting the Sea and the triumph over the Egyptian army. The language of the song is archaic and poetic. It is literally the oldest and most famous song in the Bible.

When written in the Torah a special scriptal layout is used. The Talmud calls this scriptal method “shirat haYam” which means tile over brick (i.e. like bonded brickwork). When written it looks like this:

This special layout sets the text of the song apart very clearly from the prose text normally encountered in the Torah. Interestingly, the last verse of the song is a matter of some debate. According to most commentaries (see especially, Ramban) Shirat haYam concludes with verse 18: The Lord shall reign forever and ever. Ramban does not include the following verse in the song, verse 19 read: “For the horses of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, and Hashem brought back the waters of the sea on them; but the children of Israel walked on dry land in the midst of the sea.” For Ramban, this just returns us to the story where we left off before the Song took us away from the narrative. He notes that the language of verse 19 is no longer poetical but rather returns to prose and therefore he does not consider it part of Shirat haYam.

Ibn Ezra however includes verse 19 as an integral part of the Song of the Sea. He felt that this verse was included to emphasize a double miracle, or, miracle within a miracle— that the Israelites crossed the sea on dry land while at the same time the Egyptians drowned in the sea. Ibn Ezra’s insistence that this verse is part of the song can only be understood when looking inside a torah scroll and realizing that according to our scriptural tradition verse 19 is written in the special brick-like layout of the Song of the Sea. Therefore, Ibn Ezra felt compelled to explain verse 19 as being part of the song itself.

The Shirat haYam (or simply the “Shira”) became a central part of our prayer liturgy. We recite it daily at the conclusion of the zemirot psalms. In many Sephardic communities verse 19 (Ki Bi Sus Parash) is included in the daily recitation of the Shira. But in our tradition here at Shearith Israel we conclude the Shirat haYam verse 18 (Adonai Ymakh le Olam sa’Ed). In most Ashkenazi communities verse 18 is actually repeated twice, apparently to emphasize that it is the conclusion of the song and not to continue reading the next verse. The various liturgical customs seem to be directly related to the question where does this most famous song, the Shirat haYam actually end?

The Shirah Melody and Special Customs for Shabbat Shirah

On Shabbat, Rosh Hodesh, and holy-days, we chant “Az Yashiir.” The melody we sing for the Shirah has become an “anthem” of sorts for Western Sephardim. It is without doubt the most well-known and widespread of all Spanish & Portuguese melodies. The Shirah melody is also used for Beitar haBe in the Hallahel on festive occasions and this is also the same melody used for Bendigamos. This melody is very ancient, it has closely related variants in Turkey, Morocco, and Italy. Macy Nulman has even theorized that the special Ashkenazi Torah chant for the Shirat haYam is actually related to our melody deriving from a common source. This is another indication that the Shirah melody has very ancient origins.

On Shabbat Shiras as well as on the Seventh day of Passover, we read the Shirah within the Torah portion of the day. In our community this section is read with a distinctive and special melody known as “Haig Na’am.” This melody is usually performed with great musical drama. It is reserved for first chapter of Genesis, the 10 commandments, and several other particularly special or dramatic portions of the Torah.

A unique Spanish & Portuguese custom is that during the morning zemirot of Shabbat Shira we do not conclude the “Az Yashiir” at verse 18 as we normally would on page 50, rather we continue chanting straight into verse 19, including Miriam’s song, and on until the end of the Torah portion at verse 26 (see page 367). We also utilize the special Haig Na’am Torah reading melody even during the Zemirot prayers in the morning — and do not chant the normal Shirah melody. So paradoxically, on Shabbat Shiras we never read Az Yashiir! with this most famous melody!

While we do not actually chant the Az Yashiir to the Shirah melody — this melody is the musical theme of the day. It is sung during Kaddish and Yigdal in the evening, and for Kaddish Kedoshah, Ein Keloheenu and Adon Olam on Shabbat morning.
